Ep 26:

Character specific stuff for s2:

Kass:

- Tries very hard to be the voice of reason with Charlie/Peaches and Axel, because she doesn't want to fuck up their revolutions. But she's being TOO cautious at first, and others at the station take notice.
 - Learns the weight of the world isn't on her shoulders, and that she can ask others for help.

- The whole thing with Thesia... she tries very hard to contact her but to no avail, all while denying that anything is wrong

Lyssel:

- MAYBE: Tries to leave for the Gannon Islands, but the boat just brings them right back and they admit they didn't really want to leave, they just had a hard time letting go of their previous plan. And they had an idealised idea of what the Gannon islands are like. Accepts living on Arcadia.

Jo:

- Between seasons, Jo has gone on T. (Marvin managed to get a hold of some and bring it over)
- Tensions between Jo and Z escalate, because Z gets more depressed and Jo tries to "help" more
- Jo feels useless/powerless to help her friends, and there isn't really busy work to do, and has a bit of a nervous breakdown.

Z:

- Tensions between Jo and Z escalate, because Z gets more depressed and Jo tries to "help" more
- Z gets more avoidant, as the situation in Surrigen (her home country) gets dire. Secretly asks Marvin to help find her family.

Marvin:

- Becomes deeply troubled with the state of the war.
- Goes missing for a time??
- Tries to investigate Z's family on the down-low, but to no avail (due to how almost-landlocked Surrigen is, and the state of disarray, it's very hard.)

Things the characters have been/will be up to:

- More gardening, it's really flourishing!
- Lyssel and Jo have discovered fantasy!magic the gathering, and gotten really into it.
- Z randomly suggests doing a dance night, and it ends up being a surprising success. Jo and Kass both really like it, and it's so rare that Jo and Z like doing the same thing that they decide to make it a tradition. (Lyssel doesn't mind it, and is very flexible, but needs a little more persuading)
- Jo decides they should paint murals around the station to make it more cheery, and strong-arms the others into it.
- Kass has gotten better at knitting, through the station's guidance. She is secretly making matching hats for everyone.
